History of Black Friday & Cyber Monday

• Black Friday: 1960s; Cyber Monday: 2005

• Consider the following:

  – 83% of consumers prefer to shop online than in crowded stores during Thanksgiving weekend.

  – 65% of US internet users have begun their holiday shopping before November.

  – E-retail sales were up nearly 14% for the five-day Thanksgiving sales period from 2009-10.

  – On Thanksgiving Day 2010, online sales were up 33% compared to 2009, with AOV climbing 14.3%
More and more dollars are shifting online during Thanksgiving weekend:

US Black Friday Ecommerce Sales: 2005-2010

- 2005: $306m
- 2006: $435m
- 2007: $531m
- 2008: $534m
- 2009: $595m
- 2010: $648m

US Cyber Monday Ecommerce Sales: 2005-2010

- 2005: $484m
- 2006: $608m
- 2007: $733m

Leverage Email

• Why email? Because it works.

• Consider the following:

  – 60% of retailers sent email on Thanksgiving Day, up from 45% in 2009.

  – 55% of retail emails sent on Black Friday referenced Black Friday, compared to 33% in 2009 and 25% in 2008.

  – 77% of major online retailers sent at least one promotional email to their subscribers on Cyber Monday, making it the most popular day of the year to send retail emails.
Email: Send messages early and often

- Don’t fall in customers’ inboxes

- In 2010, retailers began their holiday campaigns October 17

- Top retailers increased email sends by 47%, averaging 17.3 emails/month

- Be careful of drastic email increases…
Email: Optimize your subject lines

Include Black Friday/Cyber Monday, discounts:

- Thanksgiving Day Special: Free Shipping Today Only!
- Black Friday Starts Early! Get 30% Off All Items
- Shop Black Friday Specials – Save Up to 20%!
- Up to 50% off Black Friday Sweater Sale

- TODAY ONLY! Cyber Monday Deals and More
Utilize PPC Advertising

• Why PPC? Because it also works.

• Consider the following:

  – Advertisers spent 52% more on PPC YOY during the 2010 holiday season.

  – Online revenue from PPC during the 2010 holiday season grew 69%.

  – Conversion rates (% of clicks that resulted in sales) increased 21%.
PPC: Start early, spend more

• Launch campaigns now to reach early shoppers
• Optimize for busy periods with early findings
• Don’t be a Scrooge: spend was up 50% last year
• Increasing spend keeps you competitive all weekend
PPC: Make relevant adjustments

• Base keyword adjustments on shoppers’ mindsets

• Example keywords for a kitchenware retailer:
  – Kitchen gifts for mom
  – Gifts for home cooks
  – Kitchen appliance gifts
  – Black Friday deals on kitchen appliances
  – Cyber Monday sales on kitchenware

• Adjust ad text and corresponding landing pages
Increase Average Order Value (AOV)

- The average amount of revenue generated from each order
- Calculated by dividing the overall number of orders by total revenue
- One of your most important metrics
- AOV has steadily increased, despite economic struggles
Increase Average Order Value (AOV)

How?

Free shipping over a certain amount
Provide free shipping on orders that exceed a certain amount, such as $50.

Rewards programs
Remind customers that the more they spend, the more points/cash they earn.

Gift cards
Offer a gift card with a certain order amount, such as a $5 card with $50 purchase.

Special discounts
Give a certain percent or dollar off a certain order amount, like 10% off a $100 purchase.
Decrease Bounce Rates

- % of users who enter a site and leave without viewing any other pages
- Bounce rates are up, growing 4.05% on BF ‘09 and 22% from April ‘08
- Moral of the story? Customers are on a mission.
Decrease Bounce Rates

How?

Prominently promote your promotions
Announce any special offers on prime site real estate, like your homepage.

Highlight featured and popular products
Use banners, icons or slideshow placements to directly link to your hottest items.

Decrease load times
Enable your CDN to increase site speed and keep customers from waiting.

Ensure impressive site design
If shoppers are turned off by your site design, they’ll bounce immediately.
Like it or not, coupons and discounts are a necessity this season

Consider the following:

- 70% of online shoppers believe retailers will offer better prices and discounts because they recognize consumers are struggling financially.

- 66% of consumers will use online coupons for at least 25% of their purchases in the next 12 months.

- 38% of adults report spending one to three hours on coupon research, with an additional 14% spending more than three hours.
Deploy a Sound Coupon/Discount Strategy

Before you start giving out coupons like Halloween candy…

– DO NOT arbitrarily create discounts

– DO perform basic calculations

– DO conduct a historical analysis for top performers
How to Launch a Free Shipping Promo

Perform a detailed pricing analysis
Study the profit margin of each product to decide if you can offer free shipping storewide, to certain products, etc.

Determine the length of the promotion
One-day blowout? All weekend? Entire holiday season?

Evaluate all shipping providers
Calculate the cost of each product from each provider.

Evaluate all shipping methods
Calculate the cost of each product for each shipping method.

Blow it out
Make it work by promoting it to new and current customers.

Bonus Tips: Black Friday

- Online shoppers begin shopping, on average, around 10am – hold back on email sends to be at the top of their inboxes.

- Last year, online shoppers viewed 18% fewer products than 2009 – promote specific products to guide shoppers, faster.
Bonus Tips: Cyber Monday

- 45-50% of Cyber Monday purchases are made at work – cater to these “model employees” by sending emails during standard business hours.

- Cyber Monday shoppers are more likely to make impulse purchases – encourage unexpected buys with blowout sales via social media or email.
